Angry crab shack reviews happy valley

We were thrilled when we found out that Angry Crab Shack was opening a new location in Ahwatukee. I was even happier when they finally did, so it was a longer trip to their location in Mesa. Their new location on Ray Road is in a large facility that has hosted a series of restaurant failures. This restaurant, however, will not fail because it is a winner. It's a lively place from the moment you walk in to the moment you leave. Hi the hostess station is friendly and that applies to every server I had at Shack. The fish is excellent, with a good variety, with 9 types of fish, a variety of baskets, and new in this location pulled by pork and breast. We tend to start with raw oysters half shelled. A dozen costs $16 and they are bigger, tastier and cheaper than what you would find in local grocery stores. Fish is the price of pounds. Select fish and then you have a choice of 6 sauces and 5 levels of spices. The fish is boiled in a bag and delivered to your table in the bag. This can be a bit messy and they don't provide bibs to those who ask for them. I always order shrimp that are large. Priced at about $12 per kilogram, they are good value. I take them out of the bag and put them on the paper-covered table because they tend to continue to cook in the bag and could end up soft. You eat with your hands, but they have a few outdoor sinks where you can clean. On our last visit my wife had King Crab Legs. I think she's been spoiled at some of our favorite restaurants as crab legs are cut for her. Here she used the hammer and other tools to get entry to the crab. She enjoyed them and at about $21 per kilogram, a pretty good deal. I tried cooked vegetables in a bag once, but were not impressed. So others have commented, you need to get here early. It's a good indication of their popularity when they reach 5 p.m and the place is almost full. $$$- Cajun/Creole, Seafood 2501 West Happy Valley Road Building #48, Phoenix (623) 226-8880 Reviews Google Yelp Facebook Tripadvisor More reviews (152) Hours or services may differ due to COVID-19. It's casual seafood: hard, paper tablecloth/plate/napkin, no utensils (except on request), and the walls are covered with writing by patrons. Seafood and parts are aromatic and delicious. The main menu is a variety of fish and shellfish at market prices. A lot of items are seasonal, so not everything is on the menu every night. So choose seafood, choose spices: Cajun, pepper garlic sauce (or trifacta-all three) or tamarind sauce. Now choose the spice level from 0-4. Add sausages, corn and/or red potatoes and everything goes in a bag, cooked and delivered back to you to dine on the table. And oh, my God, that's good. We had shrimp, crayfish and mussels. A king king The claw ended up in my bag. That soaked crab meat that mix boils so well was just the best bite of food I think I've ever had. We also had half-shell-good oysters, Calamari-good, but different, hush-perfect chicken and slaw-excellent cole. They have a good bar and serve lots of beers from local sources. They also have fried seafood baskets, po' boy sliders and other items to try. They have dessert, but we were way too full to think about it. As a very nice touch have sinks and lots of paper towels parked in the restaurant, so you can pick up from the table and wash as soon as you're done eating. Very thoughtful. The service was incredible. It looked like an army of people running to our table for two hours to give us more drinks, more food, more everything. Very nice people work there. We're going back to the Angry Crab soon. Unfortunately, this restaurant is not on the OpenTable booking network. If you wish, we will notify you by email if this restaurant joins. Mark was our server- he was quick with all our commands, super friendly, helpful to his colleagues. Another server in our area, Jordan, was awesome. I watched her put a bib on an older lady dining with her niece. He helped the two break into their lobster and crab. The food was delicious. Go big and bold with a seafood cajun simmer at the Angry Crab Shack in Happy Valley Town Center in North Phoenix. We serve tasty food at the price of pounds to feed groups of any size. Traditional Cajun seafood, shrimp, crab, and crayfish are fan favorites, but choices like lobster, clams, and vegetable tofu are delicious made for order as well. Once you've chosen protein, gravite it, spice it up, and choose your vegetables. We'll add them directly to the bag, to be able to walk out the door with ready-to-cook food. At Angry Crab Shack, we offer an optimistic environment with satisfying delicious food. Whether you choose to dine with us or dine exclusively seasoned to go, we offer a mixture of tastes unlike any other. Host your party at Angry Crab Shack: Event Company Birthday Make no mistake about it: Angry Crab Shack is a blatant rip-off of Hot N Juicy Crawfish, a Cajun seafood concept founded in Las Vegas by a Vietnamese entrepreneur who began its regional expansion and recently opened an outpost on Tempe's Mill Avenue. Hot N Juicy gained national notoriety when Food Network buffoon Guy Fieri anointed it, though, since then, the idea has already caught on. I was thrilled when I heard that Hot N Juicy was coming into town; it was always one of my first stops in Las Vegas. But my experience in Tempe lacked a certain je ne sais quoi; was good, but not as good as the original. It was too clinical compared to Las Vegas, devoid of edginess, gravel, loud music and service staff consisting of most of the off-duty strippers bidding their time before the night shift began. So it is ironic to find that missing gravel in Mesa, an otherwise safe-paradise of conservative values under the close grip of the Mormon establishment. But given the amount of cold beer and Hurricane cocktails being served in plastic cups on a crowded Friday night, no one in these parties seems to care much about the church-imposed moral code. Angry Crab Shack serves up culinary hedonism in a hokey water-themed space where the walls are covered with faux fishing nets, schlocky nautical themes, and graffiti from diners. It's noisy, dirty and definitely unexpected. It is also fantastic, a better facsimile of the concept that he copied. Click here to read the full review. Keep Phoenix New Times free... We're glad we stopped! We are always looking for great calamari appetizers - not strong bread, decent sizes, good sauce. The angry crab met the criteria. We enjoyed the Calamari Tapes, which were... true, two-bit tingpieces. The immersion sauce had a good horseradish, without being overwhelming. Rarely do my husband and I order the same entrée, but on this visit, we both felt like sleeping. Catfish is one of Angry Crab's Angry Baskets. We both ordered Cajun fries as a go-with, and while he had beans, we had cole slaw. Cole, fish was easier pane than many filets we enjoyed, but it could have been a little thinner (I mentioned this when I tend to be able to choose off the bakery). The fries were excellent, the kind you want to keep eating, even when you know it should stop; my husband said that beans are good; and, I enjoyed slaw cole as it was light - not strong mayo'd or fat. The angry crab offers seafood and crab boils for pounds. This is what we will surely be indulging during our upcoming visit. There are several different seafood you can select from. To make it easier to figure out the price per kilogram, images of each type of seafood and its cost are displayed throughout the restaurant. I can't wait to try this! The restaurant's ambience is delightful -- nautical theme, large paper table cloths (to match those seafood and crabs), big-screen TV and background music that wasn't blasting. We were able to talk to each other without shouting. The restaurant allows writing on the walls, so we added our name and date of visit, although you will not be able to choose it on the attached photo! Our server was excellent, and she introduced her replacement (we obviously visited during the shift change). We were thrilled that Terri told us that she and Emma share tips. This was good for us to know as customers that each served half our meal. I look forward to coming back! More return! More
